Was Too Particular.

A Boonton (N. J.) real estate man was trying to sell a small farm by mail to a possible purchaser in Manhattan, a very precise and particular person. One day a friend asked him how he was making out on the deal. "Oh, I've quit," he said in a tone of marked pleasure. "You see, he wrote for so many details and kept insisting on having more, that I got tired at last and wrote, telling him if he would pay the freight both ways I would ship the darn farm down to the city to look at, and he never answered my letter."—Puck.

Left Eye

Col. Dan T. Moore was attached to the artillery and stationed in Washington, he frequently engaged in friendly boxing bouts with former President Theodore Roosevelt. It was in one of these that he crossed a right to the Colonel's left eye which rendered that organ permanently useless. Col. Moore does not remember the incident, but since he is the only artillery officer who boxed with Col. Roosevelt between 1904 and 1906, he presumed that he must have administered the blow in one of the tri-weekly matches at the White House. He is sorry now. Col. Roosevelt never divulged the name of the man who did the deed.

PRESENTS FOR BOYS IN TRENCHES

Christmas Box Worth About $400 Sent Yesterday.

A box containing about 200 Christmas packages was shipped yesterday from Red Cross headquarters to St. Louis, to be sent to American soldiers in France. The Belmont, West Side and Virginia Street schools, the colored schools and the Western State Hospital and other places contributed liberally and many individuals responded to the appeal.

In each package went the name of some person who had contributed the articles or had given money with which to purchase them. Not the name alone was included, but in every one went a little personal note of cheer and appreciation from the folks back home to the boys in the trenches. These notes probably will be the most appreciated of all the things in the packages.

Each package is contained in a stout bag made of gay flowered creton, each bag being exactly the same size and made the same way. Inside this bag the first thing the soldier will find will be a "housewife," containing safety pins and bachelor buttons. Then will come the "package," which is wrapped in tissue paper and tied with red ribbon in true Christmas style. Under the paper is a khaki handkerchief in which the gifts are enclosed.

Untying the handkerchief, the various articles come to view. In each package there is a wash rag, handkerchief, shaving stick, tooth brush, pipe, envelopes, mints, chocolate, sack of smoking tobacco, some pencils, chewing gum, writing tablet, cigarette papers, 5 Christmas post cards, cake of soap, and a game of some sort, each worth about $2.

Experience with Gas.

The American Infantrymen in the trenches and artillerymen in the gun pits have had their first real experience with gas shells. The Germans have let loose many during the last two days, making use of gas masks necessary. Shrapnel also has been freely used by both sides.

During a recent night the enemy machine guns were again turned on the Americans trenches, the Americans replying with an equally vigorous fire.

'Twas Ever Thus.

"Statesmen," said Plutarch, "are not only liable to give an account of what they say or do in public, but there is a busy inquiry made into their very meals, beds, marriages and every other sportive or serious action." And Plutarch lived nearly 1,900 years ago.

Eyeglasses as Ornament.

End of Galt House.

The Galt House, First and Main, Louisville, one of the oldest and most famous hotels in America, is about to be converted into a government warehouse.

A Chicago capitalist, it is said, at an early date will take over the hotel and remodel it as a storehouse for army and cantonment supplies.

According to plans recently formed railroad tracks will be run into the hotel.

The hotel is one of the oldest and most historic places of its kind in America. It was built ten or fifteen years after the Civil War by Daniel Whitestone, architect, and has sheltered many men of international prominence, among them being the Duke of Marlboro and the famous Colonel Throckmorton, who figured so conspicuously in politics during and after the Civil War.

Originally the Galt House stood at the corner of Second and Main streets in the building now occupied by the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis road, and in the early 40's Charles Dickens, the famous English writer, spent a night in one of its rooms while on his tour in America.

"I'll Show You How Corns Peel Off!"

Ever Peel a Banana Skin? That's It!

"I should worry about those corns—I just put some 'Gels-It' on." Corns used to peeler the world into a frenzy, enduring pain, digging, slicing toes, tinkering with plasters.

"Gels-It" Puts Your Feet in Clover—It Ends Corns Quickly.

and tape, trying to fix a corn so it wouldn't hurt. But now no one in the world should worry, because the moment you put "Gels-It" on, it means the end of a corn. There is nothing in the world like "Gels-It"—nothing as sure and certain—nothing that you can count on to take off a corn or callus every time, and without danger. The corn never grew that "Gels-It" will not get. It never irritates the flesh, never makes your toe sore. Just two drops of "Gels-It" and presto! the corn-pain vanishes. Shortly you can peel the corn right off with your finger and there you are—corn-free and happy with the toes as smooth and corn-free as your palm. Never happened before, did it? Guess not.

Get a bottle of "Gels-It" today from any drug store, you need pay no more than 25c, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.
